

A level History

What board do we do? Edexcel, AQA, OCR

Which subjects combine well with History?

History combines well with a number of other subjects. English Literature, Government & Politics and Economics are obvious examples, but History also complements a more Science based programme showing an ability to write analytically and understand current events in their historical context.

What careers and University courses can History lead to?

History is a well respected academic subject at A level. History prepares student well for any careers or degree courses that require an ability to carry out research, to put forward a well supported argument or to write analytically. Teaching on the course encourages students to read a variety of historians' views and use their own knowledge to challenge and support their interpretations.

Book List

- Exam Revision Notes: As/A Level 16th Century British and European History (Geoff Woodward)
ISBN: 0860034461, 9780860034469